GEOLOGY OF THE COUNTIES EXAMINED. -, YAKIMA OOITNTY. My reconnoissance covered about two-thirds of Yakima county, leaving unexplored an irregular belt, from 30 to 50 miles broad, extending eastward from the crest of the Cascade mountains. The recent discovery of anthracite coal at Cowlitz pass, in this unexplored tract, shows that an important chapter in the geological history of the county there awaits investigation. This region also contains much that is especially attractive to the general traveler in search of the picturesque and beautiful. It is a land of magnificent mountains and wild canyons, and is clothed with forests up to the beginning of the snow fields on the higher summits. Mount Tacoma, the loftiest peak in the state of Washington, stands near its western border, while Mount Adams, even more prominent as seen from many points of view to the eastward, is wholly within the limits of the county. Many mountain lakes, surrounded by rugged slopes still clothed with forests, all in the freshness and wildness of their natural beauty, occur along the eastern slope of the range. The streams flowing from these fountains have carved deep canyons through lava rocks, or where their task was less difficult, have spread out sediments so as to form natural meadows of great luxuriance. This mountain belt is without roads, and can be traversed only by following the few trails that penetrate it, thus adding the zest of exploration to the charm of the natural surroundings. From...
